

SOTO Enrique, MD

Dr. Enrique Soto is currently a Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility Fellow at the Cleveland Clinic. Dr. Soto is a graduate from the ITESM – Tec de Monterrey Medical School in Mexico. After obtaining his medical degree, he completed a residency in Obstetrics and Gynecology at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City and a Fellowship in Minimally Invasive Gynecologic Surgery at the same institution. Subsequently, he obtained a Master's in Science Degree with specialty in Clinical Embryology and Andrology at the Jones Institute for Reproductive Medicine / Eastern Virginia Medical School.

Dr. Enrique Soto has wide research interests and has published peer-reviewed original articles and textbook chapters. In addition, he has presented his research at many national and international meetings. His research interests include reproductive and minimally-invasive surgery, fertility preservation, infertility and in-vitro fertilization.